Free Movie Presentation of "The Race to Nowhere"

This film is rated PG-13. Parents, students and all community members are invited to attend. The movie will be followed by a Student Discussion Panel.

About the film:

The New York Times: "Spurred by the medical and emotional problems of her own three children, Ms. Abeles embarked on a deeply personal inquiry into the insanely hectic lives of too many of our offspring. Rushing from class to sports practice, from community work to homework, and relying increasingly on stimulants and sleep deprivation, these kids seem more pressured than the average C.E.O. Documenting consequences that range from depression to eating disorders to suicide, the film's medical professionals share Ms. Abeles' alarm and her awareness that blame, if it exists, is systemic and with little current incentive to change."

"Fathers, everywhere - please see this film. There are so many parenting issues where the torch is being carried by the moms alone, and the dads are merely roped in. The issues raised in Race to Nowhere are too important; we need to see it, talk about it, and deal with it. It'll take a collective effort to create communities around our children where they are not so destroyed by a single failure, where they don't feel every single act is being judged by admissions officers, and where they are free to still be kids." - Po Bronson, co-author of NurtureShock: New Thinking About Children

"The "Race to Nowhere" is another inconvenient truth. It's a wake-up call to all of us who care about children, the purpose of schools, and how we define success in American education. And, importantly, it provides viewers with excellent, actionable suggestions of how to begin to address change locally in our schools." George Lucas Education Foundation
